Featured Case: Transgender activists end policy of gender markers on Philadelphia public transit

Transgender activists aimed to pressure the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) to discontinue the use of male/female gender markers on commuter passes.

Read more about this campaign now... [1]

100th Case: Guatemalan workers at Lunafil

Guatemalan workers and families withstand violence, defend justice with 410-day strike and occupation, protected by Peace Brigades International.

Read about the Guatemalan worker campaign now... [2]
Geographical Mapping of Campaigns

Nonviolent action campaigns are waged all over the world. See a distribution of the campaigns across the globe in our new interactive map.

Check out the map now... [3]
1000 campaigns from 200 countries

There are now 1000 campaigns described on this database. These campaigns come from all over the world and address a wide range of issues.

Browse campaigns now... [4]
Waves of Nonviolent Action

Some campaigns inspire others, creating a kind of "wave" of campaigns within or across countries. The 2011 'Arab wave' is an example. On the database we have grouped campaigns into several waves

Find waves now... [5]
accompanies-1987-1988
[3] https://nvdatabase.swarthmore.edu/map
[4] https://nvdatabase.swarthmore.edu/browse
[5] https://nvdatabase.swarthmore.edu/browse_waves